In the early stages of his artistic career, Banksy created numerous record and CD covers. In 1998, he worked on a series of LPs with the underground label One Cut / Hombré Label. Parallely, Banksy had a continuing working relationship with the Wall of Sound record label. The album cover of We Love You... So Love Us in 2000 featured the iconic Flower Thrower. Banksy also designed covers for Blak Twang and Badmeaningood, among others. The covers of one hundred copies of Röyksopp's LP Melody A.M. were stencilled manually. In 2003, Banksy was commissioned by the English rock band Blur for their Think Tank album and subsequent single tracks like Good Song, Out of Time, Crazy Beat. In 2006, Banksy notoriously created a parody of Paris Hilton's CD album and swapped five hundred copies through the HMV and Virgin megastores in the United Kingdom.
